I am pleased to learn that Indira Gandhi Delhi Technical University for Women is organizing its 5th Convocation ceremony on 03rd November, 2022. I extend my heartiest congratulations to all graduates, post graduates and Doctorates on this occasion.

Building institutions is both an art and a science; it requires both resources and labour, but more importantly, it requires an over arching vision, an imagination that soars above the ordinary, and the capacity to foresee future demands. In this regard, it is appreciable that the first technical university for Women is growing rapidly and remains committed to produce a talented pool of trained women engineers who could contribute to Nation Building.

We have high expectations from all the IGDTUW graduates, who will receive their ribbons at the Convocation, and I am confident that they will rise up to all challenges with the skills and knowledge inculcated at their Alma Mater.

I convey my heart-felt felicitation to the graduating students, their families, and the faculty and staff of the university on this occasion.
