MESSAGE

I am happy to know that a collective effort for the rejuvenation of the rivers of the India is being done through the BHARTIYA NADI PARISHAD (BNP).

India is a country of rivers, but the condition of these civilizational life lines taken a turn for worse during the last few decades. The issue of restoring and rejuvenating our rivers is being taken on priority by the Government of India under the leadership of Honorable Prime Minister, Shri Narendra Modi. It is because of this that projects like Namami Gange were started. However, much is left to be desired, this is especially true in context of the Yamuna in Delhi.

I believe that through organizations like BNP, the fine gap between the government and the river workers will be removed and positive energy will be generated in society towards its rivers.

I wish the entire team of the BNP and Riverman, Shri Raman Kant all the best for this endeavor and hope that the BNP will be successful in its objectives.
