MESSAGE

I extend my greetings and warm wishes to all the delegates, researchers, healthcare professionals, and organizers participating in this international conference focused on Recent Advances in Molecular and Translational Research in MASLD being organized by Delhi Pharmaceutical Sciences and Research University (DPSRU).

The growing global burden of "Metabolic dysfunction associated steatotic Liver Disease (MASLD)" has emerged as a major public health concern, with serious implications on the healthcare systems, especially in rapidly developing countries like India. In this context, fostering international collaboration and scientific knowledge exchange is not just timely but essential.

Delhi, as the capital of India, has long been a centre for academic excellence and medical innovations. Hosting such a forward-looking event reinforces our collective commitment to supporting cutting-edge research, evidence-based public health policies, and inclusive healthcare strategies.

I commend the organizers for bringing together leading minds from across the globe to address one of the most pressing challenges in hepatology and metabolic health that is a major cause for the other organal dysfunction/diseases. The insights and innovations shared here have the potential to shape the future of MASLD diagnosis, treatment, and prevention of other disease symptoms not just in India, but worldwide.

On behalf of the people of Delhi, I welcome all participants and wish the conference great success. May this event inspire new ideas, meaningful collaborations, and impactful outcomes that benefit patients and communities around the world.
